

Internship: Green MBA

SpaceShare is a new environmental partnership, working to help make large events more environmentally friendly, focused on developing new tools to make carpooling much easier. We aim to operate with the efficiencies of a well run business but the values of a nonprofit. We're doing exciting work to develop a new business model, and currently developing a cutting-edge marketing effort: how do we assist events to be environmentally friendly in a way that meets their bottom line?

MBA Internship

There are two internships available appropriate for environmentally conscious MBA students. These may also be considered as class projects:

- Green Events marketing plan. Assist in developing and implementing a program to convince event planners that it is their bottom line interest to make their events green. A major component is finding "Green Sponsors" who will fund greening programs in exchange for publicity.
- SpaceShare & the MetaFoundation's Green Events Initiative business management. Help us design a business plan, organize a volunteer program, and explore better ways to run a green business.

Who is this for

Perfect for a self-motivated, creative student interested in sustainable business and green transportation. Be part of the environmental movement and make contacts in the field. These internships are an excellent position for someone hoping to learn the skills for running their own green business, a great boost to your resume, or perhaps working for SpaceShare as we grow.

Other internships also available.
